The Artists

Howard Tomashek (1, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9) from Winona, MN used welded stainless steel to describe the forms and textures of a variety of owls.

Beth George and Ann Mathews (2, 3, 5) are a creative team from Houston, MN. Their owls are made of concrete and stained glass.

Tom Nelson (5) from St. Paul, MN made his piece from recycled bicycle parts to create an unexpected new form from familiar old ones.

Molly Wiste (1, 10) is a Winona, MN native who does chainsaw carving when she is not teaching art to the youth of northern Minnesota.

Howard Loveless (2) created the metal sign for the Natural Playground and lives in Houston, MN.

The Parade of Owls, a series of artists' interpretations of "owl-ness," is a project of HARC, the Houston Arts Resource Council, with the generous support of the Houston community.
